

Parameters, Initial Quality, and Water Quality Source

After building a multi-species water quality model, the model parameters can be specified for individual pipes and tanks to override the global values. Also species initial qualities can be assigned to both pipes and tanks. Some nodes will also be specified as the sources of individual species.